

Dr. Jawairriya Abdallah-Shahid earned her Doctor of Education (Ed.D.) in Educational Theory & Practice from the State University of New York at Binghamton. In addition to her commitment to education, she is equally committed to fostering Muslim-Christian interfaith dialogue and frequently speaks at these forums. Dr. Jawairriya is a Muslim American born and raised in New York. She is currently an Education Consultant, and is also an experienced teacher and school administrator. Her passion is research and social activism that focuses on Muslim females and minorities. Dr. Jawairriya's long term goals include the development of private elementary and high schools throughout the United States that specifically caters to both Muslim and Christian students alike. Dr. Jawairriya resides in South Carolina and New York, and is a wife and mother of three beautiful children, a daughter and two sons.